Drydock Near Completion

(Associated Press Correspondent)
HONOLULU, Jan. 31.—The great Pearl Harbor naval station drydock, which has been in process of construction for several years, will be completed by next June and ready for use by the largest battleships next fall, according to an official statement by local navy authorities.

The work on the Pearl Harbor naval station began in 1909, when preliminary surveys were made for deepening and widening the channel from the open sea and for dredging out the bar at the entrance. This work required several years before the actual construction was begun.

The drydock has had several serious setbacks, the gravest of which occurred several years ago and delayed the work for more than a year. At that time the entire bottom of the drydock blew up, ruining all that had been done. The cause of the disaster, engineers discovered, was that the dredged out bottom was softer than the adjoining terrain, and the pressure of the latter caused the bottom to blow up as if a huge charge of dynamite had been exploded under it.

After a long delay a new scheme of construction was adopted. Instead of pouring concrete on the bottom, huge concrete blocks were moulded. These were floated out and let down to the bottom, securely anchoring it.

The Pearl Harbor drydock is big enough to accommodate the largest battleships afloat or projected.

War Bars Disposal Of Woman's Ashes

In an urn in the American consulate in Lausanne, Switzerland, are the ashes of Mrs. Sarah Anna Yost, of St. Louis, an artist who died September 7, 1917, in Lausanne. The first part of Mrs. Yost's wishes with regard to the disposition of her body, as expressed in her will, filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday, have been carried out. She asked that she be cremated. Mrs. Yost made the further request that in case she died in Europe her ashes be deposited in the Mediterranean Sea. This last provision has not been carried out, it was explained yesterday, by Harold Swain, the attorney who filed the will, because it has been impossible and inadvisable to try to remove the ashes at this time from Switzerland to the Mediterranean. Therefore, the urn with the ashes will remain in the consulate until after the war, when Mr. Swain said, the last wish of Mrs. Yost will be carried out.

Mrs. Yost was the widow of James H. Yost, a St. Louis clothing manufacturer and high Mason. Mrs. Yost left her entire estate, valued at more than $35,000, to the Masonic Hall and Asylum Fund of New York, for the education and care of children of deceased and indigent Masons.

Business Men Aid Y.M.C.A.

Mercantile "Captains" Volunteer for Army Canteen Work in France

"Big Business" has a rival. Moreover, the rival is making real inroads in the ranks of the executive heads of the large enterprises in this country. This newcomer in the business world is none other than the Young Men's Christian Association.

The request made of the association recently by General Pershing that it take over the entire charge of the army canteen service, has made it necessary that men of large business affairs lend their experience to the task. And they are volunteering in large numbers daily.

Among those who are to sail soon for France to take charge of the work of reorganizing the army canteen are Herbert L. Pratt, vice-president of the Standard Oil Company; Alexander N. MacFadyen, of Detroit, who has been the head of a chain of 185 five and ten cent stores; William L. Seabree, member of one of the largest firms of accountants in the country, and several others whose names are to be announced later.

Estimate Board Tacks 2 1-2 Points On 1918 Tax Rate

$2,061,364 for Queens
Boulevard Included in the Levy

The Tammany Board of Estimate yesterday tacked 2 1-2 points on the 1918 tax rate by directing that the city's share of the cost of acquiring title to Queen's Boulevard, amounting to $2,061,364, be included in the 1918 tax levy. Charges of playing politics in order to strengthen the argument against the Fusion "pay-as-you-go" policy, the abolition of which is provided for in a bill now pending before the Legislature, and at the same time acquire a couple of millions for Tammany to spend, were made at the meeting of the board.

Leonard M. Wallstein, former Commissioner of Accounts, and member of the Committee on City Government of the Citizens Union, contended that the pay-as-you-go law contained a specific exception applicable to the case at hand which permitted the Board of Estimate, at its discretion, to finance such a project by the issuance of corporate stock.

Board Ignores Wallstein
Mr. Wallstein declared that the board need not take his word that it had discretion to save the taxpayers from this burden of an additional 2 1-2 points, in the tax rate, but that the question might be submitted to the Corporation Counsel, Mr. Wallstein asked that no action be taken in the matter pending an opinion from the Corporation Counsel. He read the section which, in his opinion, gave the board discretionary power in the matter. His request was ignored and the board voted unanimously to adopt the finance committee's recommendation that the money be raised by taxation.

"Let me point out," said Mr. Wallstein, "that an attempt to raise this money by taxation, when it may be raised by corporate stock, might be construed by the public, with apparent justice, as a disingenuous attempt on your part either to unjustly increase the 1918 tax rate, for which you have announced that your predecessors are responsible, or an effort to cast discredit upon the pay-as-you-go law by failing to recognize one of the express exceptions in it, or perhaps an unwarranted attempt to impose this burden upon the taxpayer of today in order to make use of the $2,000,000 of borrowing capacity in some other field of municipal finance."

Oppose "Go-as-You-Please" Plan
The committee on finance of the board, in its report on the project, declared that the "pay-as-you-go" law compelled the taxpayers to pay the cost of acquiring title to what the committee styled "eight miles of clay bank" from which present-day taxpayers can obtain by common consent, because in years to come no physical improvement can be made, due to the city's straitened financial condition.

The grading, raising and parking will cost, it was stated by the committee, a sum in excess of the cost of acquiring title. The committee recommended the inclusion of the $2,061,364 in the 1918 tax levy because it stated, there was no satisfactory alternative.

House Favours Buchanan Statue
WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The hotly debated resolution to permit descendants of President Buchanan to erect at their own expense a monument to his memory in the park here, passed the House today, 218 to 190, and now goes to the Senate. The issues of the anti-bellum days furnished the basis for the House debate which has dragged interminably for weeks.

Catholics to Raise $2,500,000 Here For Work in War

Plans for This Archdiocese's Part in Drive Are Announced

Cardinal Farley yesterday called upon the people of his archdiocese to raise $2,500,000 within one week for the New York Catholic War Fund. The campaign will begin on St. Patrick's Day and will end on March 25.

The summons to Catholics to contribute liberally that the war work of the Church may go forward was given in an address by the Cardinal before more than 750 priests, representing the 298 parishes in the archdiocese, in the auditorium of the Cathedral College, at 462 Madison Avenue. Cardinal Farley explained that the money was needed to finance the Knights of Columbus Camp and Overseas Service and the local war charities sponsored by the hierarchy.

An intensive organization will wage the campaign. Each parish will be expected to contribute its share to the general fund. The Catholic population of the archdiocese, which extends through eleven counties, from Dougherty to Staten Island, is estimated at 1,300,000. Because the war work is said to be essentially national rather than sectarian, non-Catholics will be encouraged to contribute.

"Church Is Challenged"
"The Church is challenged," Cardinal Farley, who presided at the meeting, told the priests. "She belongs in the camps, on our ships at sea, and in the trenches, because her children are there. If you have the fighting spirit of the young men you have baptized and trained in their holy faith, this campaign will be a glorious success. We can obtain the amount allotted to us if every priest in the archdiocese enters into the spirit of this movement. The project has been carefully planned by the executive committee which I appointed."

"This is an appeal for our soldiers and sailors, 50 per cent of whom are Catholic. Can you sit idly by and not help when such an opportunity is presented? Many of you will consider the quotas too high. I can only say that this is not an ordinary appeal. It is not made to our Catholic people alone, but to the public at large. This is, perhaps, the greatest problem the Church has ever faced in this country. It is the greatest nation-wide movement we have ever undertaken as a religious body. We have a problem which challenges our power and strength before the eyes of the entire country, and we must not fail to carry on this work efficiently."

$2,500,000 Is Goal
"We are asked to raise in this archdiocese $2,500,000. This money will be used not only for our Catholic soldiers, but for all the men in our army and navy. This appeal, while fundamentally a Catholic one, is not entirely a religious movement, and we are free to approach the citizens of every class in seeking contributions."

Harvey J. Hill, a member of the American Red Cross Council, who is assisting Hubert McDonnell, campaign director for the New York Catholic War Fund, said: "This drive is more than important, because it involves a large constituency of citizens who have assumed special war obligations and, probably for the first time, are using the tremendously effective organization of the Church to render a direct national service."

The drive for financial support in New York will be followed by similar appeals throughout every archdiocese in the United States. The local campaign will be directed from offices at 30 East Forty-second Street.

St. Patrick's Raise $50,000
The quotas for each parish were announced by the Rev. Monsignor John J. Dunn. Those of the larger parishes follow:
